2 SMOTHER TO DEATH IN GRAIN TUBE

Fall Into Chute While Loosening Load in Mystic Wharf Elevator.

WERE LOADING STEAMER

While attempting to loosen a quantity of grain which had become clogged in one of the chutes, two men, employes at the grain elevator on Mystic wharf, Charlestown, was smothered to death about 9:30 this morning. One of the men was identified as an employe named Stewart, but the other has not been identified.

A large steamer was loading at the wharf adjoining the elevator when the flow of grain suddenly stopped. Stewart and a companion were sent up to the mouth of the chute to start the grain along. It is not known clearly how it happened, but the other employes were startled to hear cries for help which suddenly ceased. Rushing to the entrance of the chute they found that both men had disappeared.

A gang was immediately set to work to dig out the men, but by the time their bodies were reached both were beyond help. An ambulance was sent from the Relief Hospital which took the bodies to the North Grove street morgue.

FRANKLIN UNION CRACKED WALL ROUSES LABOR

Leaders Demand Inspection by City Officials in Building Department.

Considerable criticism and comment is being brought forward by the labor leaders of this city on the inactivity of the Buildings Inspection Department in allowing the wall on the Appleton street side of the new Franklin Union building to pass in its present condition.

For the past week, say labor men, the wall has been slowly cracking and to-day the break has caused the wall to bulge inwardly and the workmen have braced the wall with timbers. The wall is two and one-half feet thick and in its present condition, they say, it is four to five inches out of plumb.

President Arthur M. Huddell of the Central Labor Union said:

"I am surprised that the city is overlooking this break in the wall of the Franklin Union. It is in a very dangerous condition and is not safe to rear this building on.

"I have examined the break myself and find that it is four to five inches out of plumb and braced with heavy timbers. I cannot see where the city inspectors are that this matter is escaping their notice. The eyes of all the labor men of this city are on the building and we know that such work as this is not what it should be."

JAPS PLEAD FOR SAFETY IN SEATTLE

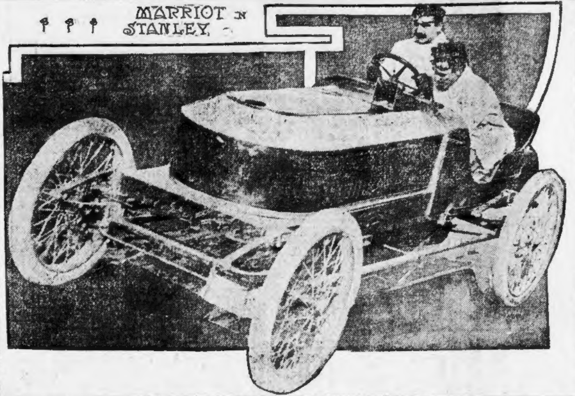
SEATTLE, Sept. 14.—Japanese Consul Shimau has appealed to Chief of Police Wappenstein to prevent the exclusion league from holding any kind of a demonstration that might lead to inciting an irresponsible element and causing race riots in Seattle.

A similar demand upon the police chief has been made by some of the newspapers, and Chief Wappenstein assured the Japanese consul that, whatever happened, he would guarantee that the Asiatic quarters are not invaded by a mob.

The Japanese consul declared that his countrymen are not arming themselves to resist an attack, and he insisted the Japanese would do nothing to incite trouble and relied wholly on the police for their protection.

Efforts of the Exclusion League to compel the chief of police to disarm the Japanese and Chinese will not have any effect upon the official. He will pay no more attention to storage of arms in foreigners' homes than he will to that in American homes, but he will arrest any person, native or foreign, who is found to be carrying a pistol.

"Dare Devil" Marriott Taking a Curve in His Auto Racer



Daring Autoists Race on Readville Track

MARRIOTT AFTER RECORD

Course in Fine Shape, and Experts Are Confident New Figures Will Result.

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Charles Basle and Fred Marriott have promised to electrify those who journey to the Readville track to witness the race meet of the Bay State Automobile Association this afternoon. Both men are capable of doing record work on a track in such condition as is the mile circuit, upon which Christie some two weeks ago rode in record time. In the practice work of yesterday there was some decidedly fast work and both Basle and Marriott, as well as Baldwin and the others who are entered for the several events showed good work and judgment.

The piece-de-resistance of the afternoon, however, will be the record attempts of the two top-notchers. Basle, than whom there is no cleverer driver in all the country, is determined to show that his rear drive machine, the Mercedes with which at Providence two years ago went the mile in world's record, can travel fully as fast as can the front drive car of Christie. He has already in private practice ridden the mile in pretty close to record time and feels confident that with the track in as good shape as it was yesterday that he will be able to do equally good work in public.

Marriott After Record.

Fred Marriott not content with his last attempt at record work has also elected to go for the record. He says his car is a veritable fiend for speed and personally is satisfied that he can get just as fast a mile as either Christie or Basle. His match race with Baldwin at the mile distance should be most interesting and exciting. Both cars are capable and have gone better than the minute and from what was seen in the practice work yesterday there are many who contend that the mile in the three heat match race will be ridden better than fifty-seven seconds. Both cars are in the very pink of condition and it will not be at all surprising if records go by the board this afternoon.

Basle in his match race will be pitted against Fred C. Hoyt, who has been selected to drive the Napier Gordon Bennett racer. Hoyt, like a great many of the motor drivers of to-day, is a graduate of the bicycle racing game and a man who can be relied upon to get the most possible out of his car. In going up against Basle he realizes that he is meeting one of the best men in the game, but as he said yesterday, I know I can get all the speed out of the car that the track will hold, and if one gets that he can win surely. I am inclined to believe that the race will be won by the man who takes the most chances in making the turns, and while Basle may be a fiend at that work, I have yet to see a track that has caused me to reduce speed under that attained by my antagonist. This gives one an impression of how bitterly that special match will be fought.

Men Practiced Yesterday.

The majority of the entrants for the regular events were at the track yesterday afternoon cutting out the miles, and from what was seen it is safe to predict a close and interesting race between the Corbins and the Austins in the touring car class. The runabout class should likewise prove most interesting. The entry list is a good one and the men who are driving have all had greater or les experience. It would certainly be unsafe to predict a winner in either the runabout of the stripped chassis classes, as the men and machines are all capable of doing as fast work as the track will stand.

Other Interesting Events Are Arranged by the Bay State A. A. Committee.

The track is in record breaking condition, far better than it was when Christie made his phenomenal mile.

250 CHILDREN IN PERIL AS CONVENT IS BURNED

HEROISM OF SISTERS AVERTS TERRIBLE CATASTROPHE AT SPARKHILL, N. Y.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Catholic convent of St. Agnes, at Sparkhill, N. Y., was partly destroyed by fire early to-day while 250 children were asleep in the building. The heroism of the Mother Superior and her assistants averted a terrible catastrophe. Their coolness enabled them to get every one of the children out of the big building two and one-half minutes after the alarm was given, and before the spread of the fire had cut off any of the exits.

The fire started on the second floor of the building, which is four stories high. The night watchman discovered the blaze and quietly notified the courageous woman at the head of the institution. In a short time everyone of the sisters had been aroused and was busy dressing the children and getting them in line, preserving order and discipline to avert a panic.

A telephone message for aid brought the fire department from Piermont, but this with all the local help available was not sufficient to check the spread of the flames. Another message was sent to Nyack and a fire engine and company was ferried across the river. By that time the fire had reached the third story, but the combined forces got it under control before it extended beyond the two floors.

SHOT IN FIGHT OVER A LAND DEAL; DYING

FRANKLIN, Sept. 14.—Antonia D'Amelio of South Franklin is dying in the hospital in this town suffering from a gunshot wound, fired, it is charged, by Sebaspiano Falcadore of Ruggles street, last night.

D'Amelio visited the Falcadore's home to complete a land deal. A heated augument arose which finally led to blows.

Falcadore, it is charged, fired two shots at D'Amelio but missed. Later he again came to the house and fired at D'Amelio, he riddling him with a charge of buckshot. Falcadore was to-day in the District Court, held for the Grand Jury without bail, on a charge of assault with murderous intent

JAPS RUSHING TROOPS TO END KOREA REVOLT

TOKIO, Sept. 14.—Alarmed by anti-Japanese outbreaks in the heart of the Mikado's sphere of influence in Korea, the Tokio authorities are dispatching five regiments of reinforcements to General Hasegawa's force in the Hermit Kingdom.

Rioting, which was at first restricted largely to the southeastern section of the country, in which there were few Japanese interests, is now spreading to the southwest, where the Japanese are numerous and have large investments.

Although General Hasegawa reports the situation well in hand, much uneasiness is felt here lest the disorders become general, involving a long campaign against the native population.

ACQUIT PASTOR IN HERESY CASE

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 14.—The charges of heresy against Rev. Charles W. Tinseiry, pastor of the First M. E. Church at Youngstown, were not sustained by the examining committee of the East Ohio M. E. conference to-day. The charges will be dropped.

MYSTERIOUS GIRL WITNESS IN GRAND JURY PHONE PROBE

Identity Closely Guarded, But She Is Believed to Be Stenographer of Man Connected With the Inquiry—Many Persons Examined To-day.

A mysterious young woman in black, who had been summoned to the court house, was the most interesting feature to-day of the investigation which the Suffolk County grand jury is conducting in the telephone graft charges.

The young woman, guarded carefully by the court officers so that no reporters could come near her, was conducted to the private office of District Attorney Moran.

It is thought that she is a stenographer in the office of a well-known man whose name has been involved in the course of the telephone graft inquiry.

Rumors that were persistent about the courthouse all day made many of the best informed believe that something important would soon develop.

CAMBRIDGE OFFICIALS AT COURT

As though to prove that the investigation was about to be productive of sensational results, several Cambridge officials were summoned to appear before the Grand Jury to-day in connection, it is supposed, with the telephone probe.

Former President of the Cambridge City Committee J. Frank Facey was at the courthouse to-day and gave testimony to the indicting body. Superintendent of Streets Chulkas was another Cambridge official called as were also Former Superintendent of Police Cunningham and Representatives Hogan and Andrews.

Superintendent Dresser of the 'Phone Trust was at the court house again to-day, whither he had been summoned to appear by the District Attorney. He was kept waiting outside of the Grand Jury room for a long time while other persons were being summoned to appear before the 'phone graft investigators.

CROWD FILLS CORRIDORS.

The corridors of the courthouse presented a novel scene to-day. There were knots of well-known politicians gathered in corners eagerly discussing the developments of the day and all anxiously speculating on what might come next.

That the investigation has stirred up the greatest feeling and even apprehension on the part of many was evident from the faces, the manners and the very tones of many men who hung around the courthouse corridors.

WOMAN OF MYSTERY TALKS.

The mysterious young woman was called before the Grand Jury at 11:15 this morning. She emerged from the Grand Jury room at 11:30. To a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN she said:

"I cannot tell you a single word of what was asked me when I was before the Grand Jury or what I said. It would be breaking my oath, and I am not going to do that. I will not be called before the Grand Jury again, however."

KANE DEATH SUSPECT CONFESSES TO ROBBERY

POLICE BELIEVE MYSTERY OF MILKMAN'S MURDER WILL SOON BE CLEARED.

HOLYOKE, Sept. 14.—State and city police announced to-day that they have discovered clues which they believe will lead to clearing the mystery in the death of Hugh J. Kane, the young milkman who was brutally robbed and murdered in South Holyoke a few weeks ago.

George W. Nash, the fourth suspect to be arrested, is being put through a further course of third degree examination by State Detective Flynn and the county officers. Nash protests innocence of any knowledge of Kane's death. He admits being guilty, however, of a number of breaking and entering and larceny charges which the police have fastened upon him.

Stains believed to have been caused by human blood were found on the sleeve of a coat which the police took from Nash's room in Springfield yesterday. Tests will be made to-day by a chemist to determine if they are really blood stains. A loaded thirty-eight calibre revolver found on the prisoner when arrested is looked upon by the police as an important piece of evidence.

All day yesterday and far into the night Nash was subjected to the most crucial examination ever given a prisoner in this county. State Detective Flynn conducted the examination. At first the prisoner maintained an air of bravado. The officers, however, battered down his story that he was in Holyoke on the day of the murder. He refused then to talk further of his whereabouts. They continued to ply him with questions until he finally broke down and admitted his guilt in the breaking and entering and larceny charges which they have fastened upon him. He continued, though, to protest innocence of any knowledge of Kane's death.

RICH WOMAN IS GIVEN WEEK TO SETTLE SUIT

In the Brookline court to-day the case of little Marion Faxon, the six-year-old adopted child of wealthy Miss Hannah Louise Gaffield Faxon, was laid over for a week, in order to give Miss Faxon an opportunity to settle the matter out of court, and to give her every opportunity to right herself from the charge of neglect which has been made against her regarding the child.

Little Marion was deserted by her foster mother who has sumptious apartments in the Hotel Raleigh, Brookline. It is alleged that Miss Faxon placed the child in Children's Friend Society Home in Worcester last month, and made no provision for its future, in spite of the fact that she adopted the child four years ago. The agents of the Worcester society brought the child to this city after the investigation and, after it had been placed in the care of Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, a formal charge of neglect was made against Miss Faxon in the Brookline Police Court.

HETTY GREEN IN HUB GLOOMY FOR COUNTRY

RICHEST WOMAN INVEIGHS AGAINST WATERED STOCK, PREDICTS INTERNAL STRIFE.

Hetty Green, America's wealthiest woman, is visiting Boston to-day. She has grown no more hopeful of the country's future during the interval since her last visit, in fact she declared it is "going to the devil."

"What do you think of the financial situation?" she was asked.

"What do I think of it? Why, you must be dull, young man, if you can't see for yourself. It's going to the devil."

"What do you mean by that?"

"There's nothing more to be said. Its going to the devil. Cant you see the poor people suffering all around you? Can't you see that watered stock is in everything? It's ruinous."

Then Mrs. Green arranged her bonnet and tapped her foot nervously. Turning quickly to the reporter, she continued:

"You young men of the present day will know what it is. You will all be fighting soon."

"What will be the character of the warfare—will it be with a foreign foe?"

"Foreign foe? Ridiculous. It will be among yourselves and right here."

"What do you think has produced this condition of which you speak so earnestly?"

"I don't know; look for yourself. The innocent are being squeezed."

"Do you mean that the poor people have put their money into the stock market and lost it?"

"No, I don't mean the poor people. I mean the middle class. They've got a lot of this watered stock and the water has been squeezed out."

CLARK FACES BRIBERY TRIAL NEXT TUESDAY

Hearing on the Alleged Maltreating of Deer Island Prisoners Soon to Follow.

THEN COME TRANSIT MEN

John P. Clark, the city building inspector who was arrested by headquarters detectives, who alleged that they set a trap and caught him in the act of accepting a bribe of $300 from a building contractor on Phillips street, West End, and who was later indicted by the Grand Jury, will be on trial next week.

District Attorney Moran has put the case on the list for Tuesday, when he also assigned the cases of Lorenzo Perkins, formerly deputy master at the House of Correction, Orrin Pray and John H. Forger, two officers, indicted for maltreating prisoners at Deer Island.

Next will come the case of the three members of the Boston Transit Commissioners, indicted for an alleged violation of the eight-hour law, in employing a printing firm which worked its employes more than eight hours. These men are George G. Crocker, George F. Swain and Horace G. Alen, indicted last November.

Another case to be tried is that of Lippner Tannerbaum, a wealthy New York jeweler, charged with the larceny of $19,500 from several Boston people. It is said that the counts on which he was indicted relate to mining securities. The indictment he faces alleges larcenies from George L. Hutchins, Henry L. Dexter, Alice M. Putnam, William B. Savage, Solatia M. Thayer, James A. Weegar and Sherman R. Lancaster.

MORAN DIGS IN POCKETS FOR ACCUSED BOY

District Attorney John B. Moran lived up to his reputation of big-heartedness when he not only nol prossed a charge of theft against an Italian boy extradited from Maryland, but gave the lad $10 for his return trip to Baltimore and a dollar extra for supper and incidentals. The lad departed weeping tears of gratitude for his benefactor's unexpected kindness.

Salvatore Di Camillo lived with a family on Endicott street up to August 14, when he left for Baltimore where he secured a job tending a fruit stand. His father is dead and his mother is said to be insane. After his departure he was accused of stealing $120 from the Endicott street house. He was indicted by the Grand Jury, located, and brought back to Boston. Mr. Moran went over the case carefully and then told the lad he was not suspected of a crime and he might return. There may be a prosecution in the case yet, but Di Camillo will not be the victim.

Seasickness Positively Cured

A Wonderful, Harmless Cure for All Forms of Sea and Car Sickness.

For Sale at Drug Stores, Money Refunded If Not Perfectly Satisfactory.

A remarkable cure has been discovered for all forms of seasickness, carsickness, climbing, and all nausea caused by motion, which has positively never failed.

Here, Harold, take a Mothersill Seasick Capsule as I did, and you will feel all right again in a few minutes.

To prove that this remedy is harmless and that it can never produce any bad after effects, an analysis was made by Milton L. Hersey, M. Sc., Chemist for the City of Montreal, and Analyst of the Province of Quebec: "I hereby certify that I have personally analyzed a sample of "Mothersill's Seasick Remedy," purchased by me in the open market in the City of Montreal, and my tests have failed to detect the presence of opium, morphine, cocaine, or any other alkaloid or choral whatever."

A party of 600 delegates to the International Sunday School Association Convention that went to Rome, Italy, had a supply of this remedy on hand, and not a single delegate was affected with seasickness.

This discovery at last disposes of the prejudice so many people have entertained against the use of medicines as a preventive for seasickness.

Mothersill's Seasick Remedy is sold in 50c and $1.00 boxes at druggists. If your druggist has not got it in stock, send us the money, and we will send you the remedy, all charges prepaid.

Send your name and address to-day to the Mothersill Remedy Co., 132 Cleland Bldg., Detroit, Mich., for interesting information and testimonials from many who have used this wonderful remedy.

FATHER'S DEATH AVENGED; ENDS SLAYER'S LIFE

Murderer on Parole Is Shot and Instantly Killed by Victim's Son.

HAD SERVED SHORT TERM

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Two weeks out of the Elmira Reformatory, where he had spent fifteen months for the killing of Michael Marcantino, James Beslin of Brooklyn, was shot and instantly killed last night by Joseph Marcantino, son of the man he had stabbed to death more than a year ago.

Rose Beslin, sister of the victim, also was shot by Marcantino, as she sat with her brother on the stoop of their home. Marcantino is a prisoner in the Bedford avenue station, having been captured after an exciting chase of nearly half a mile.

About fifteen months ago Michael Marcantino went to Breslin's and demanded a month's rent, he being their landlord. Marcantino and Beslin's father had a quarrel, and Michael Marcantino made a motion as if to draw a revolver. Young Beslin at once pulled a knife and stabbed Marcantino to the heart, killing him at once.

Beslin had just returned from making his report to the Elmira representatives in this city, he being on parole under the new law, when Marcantino suddenly appeared and, with the revolver levelled, said:

"This avenges my father," he yelled and fired. The bullet plunged into Beslin's eye, and he dropped lifeless at the feet of his sister. Marcantino fired again, and the bullet ploughed through the girl's arm.

EVADES POLICE BY LONG JUMP

NEWTON, Sept. 14.—Overturning a lamp in his haste and jumping out of a second-story window to escape the police, who were in his room for the purpose of arresting him on the charge of non-support, John Manning of West Newton succeeded in getting safely away and has not been apprehended.

On June 1 Manning was ordered to pay his wife a certain sum weekly. Recently complaints came to the police that he was not living up to his agreement and a warrant was issued.

Last night it was learned he was at the home of his mother, Mrs. Thomas Manning, on River street, West Newton, and officers Bates and Monaghan were sent to arrest him. When the police interrupted his slumbers he jumped out of bed and, they allege, tipped over a lamp which set fire to the furnishings. The policemen had a difficult time putting out the blaze.

GIRL CAPTIVE IS MYSTERY TO NEWPORT

Young Woman Saved From Rich Man's Yacht Refuses to Go to New York.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 14.—Lillian Rosanna Francis, the young woman of mystery, who was rescued from the auxiliary yacht Mariquita in Newport Harbor last night by police and fishermen who were drawn to the craft by her screams for aid, is still at the United States Hotel in this city. She refused to go to New York, where she says she is an artist's model, after being taken ashore last night although Police Captain Garnett gave her money to pay her fare. She said she had decided to stay here until she could obtain an explanation from those responsible for her detention on the yacht.

She told the Newport police during a hysterical spasm last night the most amazing story of abduction they had ever heard. She said she had been detained upon the boat ever since it left New York for a cruise upon Long Island Sound. That as three weeks ago. A woman companion, she said, had been allowed to land at New Haven.

Guarded by Japanese.

When her screams attracted a rescue party to the Mariquita last night she was guarded by three Japanese sailors. They said they had been told to keep her aboard by the white man to whom they looked for orders. The police think that the threatening conduct of the Japs before aid came to the young woman threw her into a frenzy of fear.

Her adventure and startling story caused intense interest in all circles here from the millionaire colony down. When Police Chief James R. Crowley was asked to-day by a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter if any arrests would follow, he sad:

"There will be no arrest unless the young woman swears out a warrant."

"Will she do so?" he was asked.

"I don't know," he replied.

The police are very reticent about the case. So is the young woman who is exceedingly good looking and fashionably dressed. It was said that she is lavishly adorned with jewelry, but had no money when taken ashore. Some think she is a rich society girl who is very anxious to conceal her identity. It is believed that only rigid investigation will bring to light the inside facts of her strange adventure.

Hhe would make no statement to-day and kept to her room in the hotel while the only gown she had with her was being cleansed. It is the dress she wore when she was taken ashore by the police. One of the first things she did when she arose this morning was to send Thomas Livingston, the hotel clerk, out for a package of complexion powder. When asked for an interview she sent word that she did not care to see a reporter and that the police had advised her not to talk.

It is understood that she told the police that the Mariquita reached Newport yesterday and that she was left alone without the protection of any white man. She said that the three Japanese were told not to let her go ashore.

"Save Me! Save Me."

Patrolman John C. Gentile was going over his beat near Commercial wharf last night when he heard a muffled cry of "Save me! Save me." He hurried down to the City pier, but could hear nothing more. He then went over to where the fishermen land and found two late comers, who had also heard the cries and were about to go out to investigate.

The officer went aboard the skiff and they rowed out to a motor boat anchored in the harbor. The fishermen declared that there had been strange actions aboard the motor boat for the last week, although they had not attempted to look into the matter.

Upon reaching the power boat Officer Gentile started to climb aboard by means of a rope ladder which was hanging alongside, and as he was about to step on deck a young woman threw herself into his arms, crying out: "Save me; save me; take me from this dreadful boat."

Just at this point two sailors appeared on deck and threatened the officer if he made any attempt to carry off the young woman.

The two fishermen had overheard the girl's pleadings and by this time were also up the side of the motor boat, and while they protected the officer with their oars, he and the girl climbed down the ladder into the skiff and were rowed ashore.

The police launch, with Officers Sullivan, Devitt and Covin, came upon the scene a few seconds later and while they made no arrests, they stood by for a while to see if any attempt would be made on the part of the motor boat men to overtake the skiff.

Upon being landed the young woman was taken to the police station where she told a most pitiful story.

MELLEN CASH BAG BACKS WHITNEY, SAYS WILLIAMS

RAILROAD CANDIDATE FIERCELY SCORED AT LEOMINSTER RALLY.

George Fred Williams at a great Bartlett rally held in Leominster last night again attacked Henry M. Whitney as the representative of the railroad monopolists who are trying to bring the merger, and he predicted that if Mr. Whitney receives the Democratic nomination for governor he will be bolted by half the Democrats of Massachusetts.

Mr. Williams said that he believed that New York, New Haven & Hartford road money is behind the Whitney candidacy, and that if he is nominated the party will be dragged into the disgraceful position of failing to stand by the interests of the people.

He said that Mr. Whitney had taken a definite position on the merger question, and finding it angered the people was trying to avoid consequences by claiming it was a business and not a political issue. Mr. Williams said that the merger was like the tariff, as much a political issue as it was a business matter. He discussed it as a grave evil menacing the prosperity of New England. He said in part:

Chief Issue in Campaign.

"This coming election of legislators and of the Governor having the veto power is to determine whether the merger shall take place.

"If a Legislature and Governor be elected hostile to the merger, definite legislation will be secured to prohibit farther proceedings by the New Haven road. If the popular verdict is in favor of the merger it will proceed despite the act of 1907. Therefore, this election is the decisive election to determine the future policy of the Commonwealth. Democrats and Republicans alike must elect their representatives to the Legislature upon this issue."

"It is ridiculous to suppose that the Democratic Convention can evade this issue. A resolution will be presented condemning the merger, and such resolution will certainly not be defeated in the convention. If it is, we shall have the astonishing spectacle of a Democratic party committed to a measure of transportation monopoly, while the Republican party is attempting to protect the people against it.

"I do not believe that 5 per cent. of the Democratic constituency in Massachusetts favors the merger proposition, and if, by indifference of the party at the caucuses, a monopoly candidate shall receive a nomination I believe that more than one-half of the party will decline to support him at the polls.

Urges Defeat of Whitney.

"It only requires a proper appreciation of the importance of next week's caucuses in the commonwealth to administer a stinging rebuke to this whole scheme of delivering over the democratic party to the tool of corporate monopoly.

"Last year Mr. Whitney was rejected when the merger was not yet a political issue. He could not be more acceptable now 'as agent and representative of the New Haven Railroad in fixing a permanent monopoly upon the people of our State and nation.'

"I have no doubt," added the speaker, "that the money of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad is behind him, and that it will be sent into the legislative districts to debauch and mislead our politicians.

"If the Democrats of Massachusetts prove to be satisfied with the puerile issues of tariff revision and reciprocity, and with this candidate's avoidance of all the real questions upon which the democracy has been built in the last ten years, I, for one, shall not be satisfied, and my protest will continue until the day of election."

SEE HAND OF ROOSEVELT IN REBUKE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Commissioner of Internal Revenue Capers's sensational announcement that he wishes "less work for a record" from his revenue agents and other special employes of the bureau and "more wisdom" in their interpretation of duties and in the enforcement of laws is deemed by high government officials here as of the utmost importance in a business and political sense.

Some people say that the public rebuke was administered to revenue agents by the secretary as an antidote to the feeling of distrust caused by the anti-corporation methods of the Department of Justice, and to allay apprehension among distillers by admitting the existence of a beam in Uncle Sam's eye and indirectly serving notice that the Treasury Department does not propose to "run amuck."

Others declare that the action has been taken at the President's instigation as the first step in a policy of informing the public that while there is to be no winking at evil-doers, the time-honored axiom of believing a man innocent until he is proven guilty will prevail toward all commercial and industrial concerns.

GUILD DENIES MORE FREEDOM FOR POMEROY

Governor Guild has turned down the petition of Rev. F. H. Gile, secretary of the American Society for Promoting Criminal Anthropology, that more freedom be granted to Jesse Pomeroy, who is now serving a life term at the State prison.

The Governor in a letter to Mr. Gile said that he could not even refer to the council the appeal against a continuance of that part of the commuted sentence of Pomeroy which relates to solitary confinement.

According to Deputy Allen's report, "solitary confinement" in the case of this notorious homicidal degenerate, belies its generally accepted meaning. Pomeroy's cell is large, not uncomfortably furnished and well lighted, its two windows opening directly out of doors.

He has the privileges of the prison library, is allowed an hour's exercise in the open air each day except Sunday, and comes in for a share of fresh fruit with the other prisoners.

The deputy states that while Pomeroy has not shown any vicious tendency in the prison, still with extended liberties he might become very troublesome.

VILLAGE LOSES $10,000 LEGACY

MT. VERNON, N. H., Sept. 14.—Because only seven men in Mt. Vernon voted for what seemed to him the most appropriate site for a public library, Hon. J. A. Bruce, former mayor of Somerville and a native of the town, has caused to be cut out from his will a clause bequeathing Mt. Vernon the sum of $10,000.

Several years ago a woman left the town $10,000 to be devoted to a free public library. A little spot in the centre of the village was spoken of as the ideal site for the new library. It was not selected, however, and the library was built elsewhere.

Mr. Bruce recently received a letter from a resident of the village asking him to make a donation to some enterprise. His reply was made public yesterday. It stated that on the day he received word that the town had voted to build the library on another site, he had caused the clause in his will leaving the town the sum of $10,000 to be stricken out.

40,000 AMERICANS MOTORING IN EUROPE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—Consul R. E. Mansfield of Lucerne, Switzerland, reports 40,000 Americans motoring on the continent. He says their expenses, at $10 a day average for each person, make a total daily expenditure of $400,000. At this figure Americans will leave behind in Europe in the two months usually spent on the continent over $2,000,000.

ITALIANS FLOCKING TO OLD COUNTRY

WORCESTER, Sept. 14.—The greatest exodus of Italians that Worcester County has known began to-day, when two carloads of them left for Boston to sail to-morrow for Italy on the steamer Romanic. For next week the same number are booked for passage on the Canopic. It is said the Italians are going home with all the money they can scrape together to aid their relatives and friends who are threatened with imprisonment for debt on account of the hard times.

A New and Bigger Tribune

Beginning Monday morning, September 16th, the "Boston Daily Tribune," which has been conducted as a modern Twentieth Century financial newspaper, will extend its scope and become a general newspaper in all that the word implies. It will be enlarged from eight pages to twelve pages. It will print all the news of all the world. The price will be reduced from three cents to one cent per copy. It will be sold on all news stands and by all newsboys wherever Boston newspapers are sold.

For the publication of the new and bigger "Boston Daily Tribune" I have engaged an able and efficient staff of editors, writers, reporters and artists. I believe they will produce a newspaper that will appeal strongly to the reading public. I believe the new and bigger "Tribune" will be received kindly and appreciated by all newspaper readers.

In politics it will be independent, and in the treatment of all public questions it will be fair, fearless and impartial. It will seek to find the truth and to print the truth. Its policy will be to upbuild rather than to pull down. It will endeavor to do good rather than harm.

It can truthfully be said of the "Boston Daily Tribune," as a financial newspaper, that it has always been different from all other financial newspapers, and so also will the new and bigger "Boston Daily Tribune" as a general newspaper be unlike any other newspaper. It will seek to lead rather than to follow. It will seek to set examples for others rather than copy the example set by another.

I only ask for the new and bigger "Boston Daily Tribune" that it be given that encouragement and support to which it may be entitled, measured by real worth as a real newspaper.

CLERGYMAN DEFIES LAW FOR AFFINITY

Minister Clings to "Soul Bride" While Lawful Wife Is in Insane Asylum.

WOMAN OF PURITAN STOCK

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—A serious breach among the clergymen of Utica, which has startled society there, was disclosed to-day when the Rev. William P. M. Sims, formerly of New York City, and Mrs. Ellen Burlingame Dorn publicly declared their belief in freedom of love, heaven-made affinities and pre-natal marriages.

The case promises to become of even wider celebrity than that of Ferdinand Pinney Earle and Miss Julia Kuttner.

Dr. Sims' attitude is as implacable as that of Earle. Veiled threats of ostracism uttered even from the pulpits have failed to move him, and earnest letters from the Rev. C. E. Miller and others of equal prominence in the Utica clergy have been powerless to influence the minister against his "soul's bride," whose home he has made his own for the last three months.

The state of affairs caused by the actions of this strange couple, and which has been carefully guarded from publicity, can be better realized when it is known that Mrs. Dorn is a high officer of the King's Daughters and has held almost every office at the disposal of the Good Templars. She is a direct descendant of the old Puritan family of Burlingame—that being her maiden name—a family famous for more than a century in Rhode Island.

Mrs. Dorn's husband is dead, she says, as is her son, but she has two married daughters living at Rome, N. Y.

His Wife Living.

Rev. Mr. Sims comes from a well-known New York family, and received his education in this city. He has brothers high in the financial world both here and in Newark. He has a wife living and two children. The former, however, has been confined in an asylum for the insane for nearly ten years.

Mrs. Dorn's home and her present residence, which is shared by the Rev. Mr. Sims, is located at No. 692 Genessee street, the most fashionable thoroughfare in Utica.

It was at that address a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter found the clergyman and Mrs. Dorn. He was received by them in the spacious library which serves the triple purpose of study, studio and reception room. The story that was there unfolded, without faltering or hesitation, forms, without doubt, the most amazing departure from the conventions of society yet revealed as a part of the new age.

The ideas advanced by Artist Earle, who shipped his wife away to France with their child to obtain a divorce that he might marry his affinity, are mediocre compared with those given expression to by this man of the gospel and corroborated by the woman, who asserts that "new thought" has proven the one consolation in life to them.

Assail Marriage Laws.

"The laws which govern marriage and the so-called morals of home life as they are must be entirely changed before there can be any assurance of happiness in the union of the man and the woman of this age."

With that direct statement, the Rev. Mr. Sims made it known at the outset that his views on the subject of marriage and one's duty to self, before society, were positive. That he is a clergyman, occupying the position of one who must be an example to the community, was not lost sight of, he said, after he had made up his mind to take a radical stand.

"The fact that I am a minister encouraged me," he explained, "to make a fight for new laws and new customs which, in my belief, will solve problems rather than face which the average man lives immorally. You see, if I were an ordinary business man little heed would be given to what I say or do."

Woman Approves View.

As the Rev. Mr. Sims finished each sentence of the unusual statement Mrs. Dorn stood by his side and nodded her head approvingly.

"We are not talking without first having gone thoroughly into this subject," the woman interrupted. "We have done nothing for months but read and study, trying to find some way to help humanity. We know by our own experience that it is the only way to get happiness when people find themselves alone in the world or mismated."

The differences in the ages of the Rev. Mr. Sims, who is thirty-six, and Mrs. Dorn, who admits forty-seven, is not regarded by them as a contradiction to the conditions where happiness is most often found in a home.

Age Not a Factor.

"Age is not a factor when an affinity is recognized," it was explained when this subject was brought by the couple themselves.

Mrs. Dorn said:

"We will bring Mrs. Sims here to our home if by any good fortune she is ever permitted to leave the asylum, and teach her to see the situation as we see it. Did not the artist, Mr. Earle, and his wife reach a common understanding that was satisfactory to all concerned after Miss Kuttner came into Mr. Earle's life? We can thoroughly appreciate in that home that which caused so much fuss in the newspapers."

At this point the minister said that he had married when he was very young, but often realized in after years that the woman who was the mother of his children was not his affinity.

"Pre-Natal" Marriages.

"Then you, too, believe in pre-natal marriages?" was suggested.

"Call it that for the lack of a better name if you like and I will add that it is my conviction that all happy marriages are Heaven directed," was the answer. "I am trying to live up to my convictions. My brothers in the church say that I am radical. They go further, and some have even called me a menace to society. I am willing to face their criticisms, for the men and the women of this thinking age are no longer willing to be tied and bound down by the old ideas of the old thought."

FEAR STRIKE WILL TIE UP SHIPPING

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Shippers via American transatlantic and coastwise teamships are growing uneasy over the eamship owners' and marine engineers' lure to reach an agreement on a new ge scale and classification. Grand Battle for the Lead in Six Day Race at Wonderland Keeps Spectators Keyed Up to Highest Pitch of Excitement

Gruelling Contest Ends To-night With Davis the Indian as Probable Winner.

With two evenings remaining in which to get the money, the six-day racers at Wonderland toed the tape last night looking reasonably fresh and got away like greyhounds at the gun, around the turn and past the bulletin board with cries of encouragement from their friends enlived by music from the band.

It is wonderful what a difference music makes in a competitive contest. Let them run steadily three long grinding hours and slow up for a respite and they will pull themselves together with a jerk when the band strikes up a new tune and pound the tan bark like a new string of men.

Indian Looks Like Winner.

It looks like Davis for the big trophy as the race proceeds. It was a pity about Prouty. He held the Indian splendidly until going lame, and then he stuck to his work for two nights when all seemed hopeless, until nature would not be denied and he dropped out.

Second position went to Dineen then, and Feeney pulled up into third place still running prettily, but not with the freshness that characterized his first two nights.

Peter Golden, the veteran, looked a good fourth at the start last night, and Henry Fingold, who has plugged and plugged and said nothing, was awarded the fifth place for his doggedness, when Hegelman dropped out.

Jake Meyers runs on hopefully with Charles McCarthy, the next man a good four miles behind, while Sam Clements, well afield, went down the line with the bunch like a prospective victor though eighteen miles behind the leading man.

Miles Behind But Still Game.

A feature of the race is the beefy but good natured Farnum Hammond, who opened last evening's engagement with only eighty-one miles to his credit and hopelessly in the rear, but nothing daunted.

"Don't give up," shouted the crowd, forced to admire his doggedness in the face of difficulty, and he spared just breath enough to shout back "Bet your life; I'll be running at the finish."

The score at the close of Friday night's race was:

	M.	L.
Davis	134	4
Dinneen	132	4
Feeney	129	4
Golden	124	3
Fingold	123	5
J. Myers	121	..
McCarthy	116	6
Clements	107	7
Hammond	102	3

The good weather of the last two days has crowded Wonderland Park. The board walk was filled until there was little more than standing room Thursday and Friday evenings. The paid shows all did a splendid business.

The great magnet, aside from the fact that the season close next Sunday night at 11 o'clock is "Alice in Wonderland" and her wondrous company.

The Marvelous Zarnes in trapeze and flying ring work make an excellent outdoor feature.

CRUSH OF VISITORS FOR REVERE BEACH CARNIVAL FEATURES

The fine weather of the last few days has sent a crush of visitors to Revere Beach equal to the best mid-Summer business and the amusement managers and tradesmen are accordingly happy.

So is the carnival committee who have arranged a brilliant string of attractions for the closing days on the boulevard and avenues and had begun to feel that fate and the weather clerk were not in harmony with their efforts.

With sixteen illuminated arches over the boulevard and three of the most tremendous open air performances possible to acquire with money the Revere Beach carnival is a proud feature.

Mme. Etoille and her troupe of educated horses, including the boxing stallions and the funny little clown pony, perform afternoon and evening.

Herr Granada and Fedora, impersonating an elephant on a high wire, and Ulivern in his remarkable slide into the sea from the top of the tower, hanging by his teeth, are thrillers that draw and of which visitors can never see too much.

CONTINUE CASE OF MRS. HOLTON

Mrs. Jane H. Holton of Somerville, charged by her husband with disturbance of the peace, was arraigned in the Somerville District Court this forenoon and her case was continued until next Friday.

Because she insisted on seeing her husband at his place of busines with the Derby Desk Company, No. 20 Vernon street, Somerville, so it is alleged, she was arrested last Monday upon her husband's complaint. The case has excited widespread interest in Somerville. The $100 bonds necessary for her release were furnished by a sympathetic friend.

Considerable notoriety was gained by Mrs. Holton about two years ago by persistently telephoning her husband. The Derby Desk Company then threatened to discharge Mr. Holton if he failed to put a stop to the annoyance and he sought an injunction to stop his wife.

The Holtons are well known in Somerville where Mr. Holton has a pretentious residence, No. 10 Albion street. Mrs. Holton is about twenty-two years, a stylish dresser and extremely attractive looking.

NURSE PRAISED BY GEN. GRANT IS DEAD

Mrs. Eliza R. Potter, eighty years old, is dead at her home at Lassell Seminary, Auburndale. Mrs. Potter was the mother of Minnie R. Potter, preceptress of Lassell; Earl S. Potter, superintendent of the Wisconsin Central Railroad, and Dr. L. T. Potter of New York. Mrs. Potter was born in Scotland, but came to this country when a child. During the Civil War she lived in Charleston, S. C., and did heroic work as an army nurse, receiving a recommendation from General Grant.

FUN GALORE AT COLUMBIA

It was a toss up last night at the Columbia between Al Howard, a colored singer, and Peter Dooley, an all round comedian, as to which furnished the greatest sport to the big audience. Howard was certainly up against a hard proposition for he had to face the audience, when it was at its most turbulent period, and no matter what he did it seemed impossible to satisfy the crowd, so the good natured colored man made the best of it and shouted with might and main, danced, grinned, opened wide his generously large mouth, and did other stunts that set the audience in roars, but it took the spot light man to cap the climax—he turned on a sickly green light on the ebony countenance of the singer and the result was one of the most laughable ever seen on any stage. Peter Dooley, the Oriental dancer, favored the audience last night with a laughing song, a yodel (in Irish), and for a windup went through some gymnastic exercises that were a conglomeration of wrestling, ragtime, buck and wing and various other movements. The winners last night were Peter Dooley and the Foley Brothers, who divided the first prize; second money went to the Macdonald boys, acrobats.

JAPO-CHINESE WAR ON SHIP

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—With a dozen of its 150 Oriental passengers suffering from wounds so serious that a number of deaths are expected, and a dozen more in irons in the brig, the bark Electra reached port to-day after a voyage of almost continual battle between 150 Chinese and Japanese cannery hands taken on board at Mushagak, Alaska.

The fighting between the two nationalities began almost before the Electra got to sea and continued intermittently until port was reached.

SHEIKS ARRESTED.

LALLA-MARINA, Algeria, Sept. 14.—With the object of repressing at once all incipient rebellion in Western Morocco in the vicinity of the Algerian frontier, the French authorities at Oudja have arrested the former and present Sheiks of Oudja and two other ringleaders in the agitation to foment anti-French feeling.

SEEK MAN WHO SHOT PATON

William Burns, thirty-eight, living at No. 403 Hyde Park avenue, West Roxbury, who was arrested by the Jamaica Plain police last night on suspicion of being implicated in the mysterious shooting of Arthur J. Paton, was released by Captain Wescott to-day. Burns was arrested last night, he being in the party when Paton was shot. He denied that he had a revolver to-day, and said that the shooting was done by one of three strange men whom he met while "loafing" in a field in West Roxbury.

The police have a good description of the missing stranger, who fled after the shooting, and officers are working on the case. An arrest is expected at any moment. Paton was shot in the right side, but the physicians have so far been unable to find the bullet, and are of the belief that the shot simply grazed his body.

MONKEY TRIES CITY HALL JOBS

An organ grinder's monkey, escaping from its master in City square, Quincy, to-day, ran things at City Hall for over a half hour. Leaving his master the monkey perched himself on the roof of City Hall and for awhile defied all attempt at capture.

"It's hard to get anybody off a City Hall berth when he once strikes it," said John Thompson, a roofer, "but I'll see what I can do with that monk."

Thompson reached the roof and chased the monkey off. The City Hall seemed to be an agreeable place, for chased from the roof the monkey headed for the council chamber, and was found sitting in the president's chair. Eluding capture again he made his way to the water office and ran into one of the large vaults. His master entered the vault to get him when a jocular clerk locked both master and monkey in. It was several minutes before the prisoners were released.

"Jocko and me getta to Boston, quick," was the comment of the grinder as he asked the time of the next Boston train. "This cita too much fool. Jocko knows a more than a people."

This Reader Rises in a Startling Defence of the Married Man Raising the Question:

"Does Man Gain by Marriage?"

Woman Takes Up Cudgel in Behalf of the Neglected Husband's Side of the Matrimonial Problem

A MOST interesting article has been received from an anonymous writer signing herself I. O. U.

We say HERSELF, for without doubt the writer is a woman, notwithstanding the fact that the trend of her sympathies is actively masculine.

At first one may be inclined to believe that the author of this series is a man masquerading as a woman for better effect, but if you read carefully you will see certain unmistakable signs of femininity, such as no mere man could successfully counterfeit without betraying his sex. The article will appear in serial form.

Whether you agree or disagree with her, you will be obliged to admit that the attitude which this lady sees fit to take toward the modern marriage is startling, to say the least, and has the virtue of being original.

Perhaps there are some married men who have ventured to think what she has dared to say, but it is safe to assume that few women will agree with her.

Woman in these days is never without her champion. She is praised and petted and lauded, and whatever she has is deemed only her just due or even less. It is popular to defend womankind; the ethics of the world at large is to take her part in the great, everlasting sex struggle. Yet here is a woman, evidently of intelligence and refinement, who deliberately accuses her married sisters of inhumanity to MAN.

Is it possible that I. O. U. is right? Is the modern husband mistreated and the modern wife a monster of tyranny and selfishness? But read for yourself. We leave you to judge.

By I. O. U.

NUMBER I.

AS a preface, I apologize—a humble, groveling apology! I apologize to you, my sisters, for my treachery, and to you, my brothers, for helping to swell that ego for which you are justly famed.

Will you accept it and shake hands? Let us be friends at the start, for some of us are going to be mortal enemies when it is finished.

If there is one thing that I hate more than another it is a woman who deliberately goes back on her sex.

But I am going back on my sex, and with a vengeance. They need it—the married ones—and they will need it, the single ones.

A Managing Woman

I MYSELF am a respectable young married woman of several years' standing. I'm one of those managing women, too, the kind whose husband minds her and is glad of it—to her face. I've learned that even the most managed husbands sometimes break out when their wives' backs are turned.

I heard one of them do it the other day, and until then it had never occurred to me that I was a thief, that I was deliberately robbing my husband of his sustenance and birthright and that I gave him nothing in return.

His birthright, you understand, is according to the Constitution, "Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

His sustenance is the money he earns and of which he gets just enough to keep him decently clothed and fed. I get the rest of it and I've always felt it belonged to me, although since hearing that conversation the other day I've come to wonder why it belonged to me and to wonder why he didn't protest more at parting from it.

I realize now that I, in common with hundreds of thousands of other wives, am guilty of a tremendous debt—one that it will take me a lifetime of devotion to repay.

It was in a street car. I sat next to two men who were talking. One of them was a bachelor, the other obviously of the type of which my husband is one, known as a "much-married" man.

(And there are more of them than you think.)

The Concealed Chains of Matrimony

Husband Too Gallant.

SAID the bachelor—the happy, care-free bachelor: "What's doing Sunday?"

Answered the married man: "Sit around the hotel with the wife—read the papers and wish I was dead."

Did it ever occur to you, married sisters, that your husband ever felt like that? YOU do lots of times. You don't hesitate to say straight to his face if you feel like it, "I'm sick of living! I wish I was dead!"

But he doesn't say it to you. No, worse shame! He says it to some bachelor friend behind your back. He's too gallant to say it directly to you and, perhaps, too much afraid of you.

But to resume:

The bachelor laughed. "As bad as that, old chap? What's the matter with a game of golf? That'll brace you up. You used to be great for golf. We'll get a couple of the fellows and make up a foursome. We'll have dinner afterward at the club on the porch."

"My Wife Won't Let Me"

THE married man smiled grimly. "Can't. My wife won't let me," he replied.

Still the bachelor stuck obstinately to his point.

"Aw, Tom, just this once. Bring her, then—Bessie used to play——"

"You couldn't drag her out now," said the other impatiently. Then some slumbering resentment broke loose in him.

"God! boy," he exclaimed passionately, "it's evident that you don't know what it means to be married! It's plain that the miserable slavery of it hasn't struck you. I can't do anything on the face of this earth that I want to any more without a row—and all because I was fool enough to get married!"

"Yes, I do understand all right," replied the other sententiously. "I understand, Tom—and that's why I'm not married."

KEEP THE FEET WARM AND DRY

WE should wear rubbers whenever we need them and take them off as soon as we can. The feet must be kept warm and dry. A famous physician is reported as saying that his income would dwindle to a half if women kept their feet warm. And it may be added that a woman's chance of being a comfortable, jolly person would be improved by three halves if she would wear the right kind of shoes.

Look on the Bright Side of Things and You Will Be Happy

By Beatrice Fairfax

"Where the apple reddens never pry,
Lest we lose our Eden, Eve and I."

IF you once begin to doubt your friends and look for ulterior motives in all they do you will always be unhappy.

Don't always sift a pleasure to the very roots before you can begin to enjoy it. Take it for what it is worth, on its brightest side.

I know a girl who never can fully enjoy a kindness shown her because she is always afraid that the kindness is shown for some benefit to be gained by the person showing it.

It is a miserable characteristic, and she will never know any real happiness until she conquers it.

Take Life Easy

PEOPLE are kind to you because it is their nature to be kind, or because they like you, and affection prompts them to show you kindly attentions.

Don't look for unpleasant surprises. Take life as happily as you can.

Sometimes if you look too deeply into a thing you will find that it has its unpleasant side, but unless you look for it it will never obtrude itself, so why look?

Why not go ahead contentedly seeking happiness and closing your eyes to as much unpleasantness as you can?

There is a great deal of sunshine for those who know where and how to look for it.

Ray of Sunshine

THE person who always finds the bright side of things is a perpetual ray of sunshine in the house.

I would advise every young man who is thinking of getting married to make very sure that the partner of his future has a sunny, cheerful disposition.

To come home at the end of the day's toil and find a sweet-faced, happy wife waiting for you must make any man feel that life is well worth living.

But to come home and find a doleful, sad-faced wife, with a string of woes a yard long, that is discouraging enough to drive a man to any extreme.

No matter how pretty and capable you are, my dear girls, you must be cheerful as well or you will be failures as wives.

Make it a habit to always see the nicest side of people and the brightest side of things, and you will be a blessing to the lucky man who wins you.

FIRST AID IN TIME OF ILLNESS

A SEVERE paroxysm of coughing may be often arrested by a tablespoonful of glycerine in a wineglassful of hot milk.

There are so many soothing and hygienic elements in water, just clear water, either hot or cold, that, generally speaking, the whole human race would be better for more varied, if not necessarily copious, use of it. Few persons drink enough water, for one thing.

Fainting has always for its immediate cause a deficient supply of blood to the brain. Sometimes this is brought about by a weak heart. Most frequently the deficiency is caused by a sudden enlargement of the blood vessels in the viscera of the abdomen. Any shock may do this, and the immediate consequence is a fall of blood to fill the enlarged vessels, thus robbing the brain.

HOW TO BE BEAUTIFUL

By the Professor

NO one, at any age, can be beautiful, live healthily and be a wholesome human being without play. City life, particularly, demands provision for relaxation for those who are in mature life. In this way only can the burdens of life be kept from wearing out one prematurely. Play works admirably in the way of keeping health and a good social atmosphere.

Precisely as with the young, so with the old—play has its hygienic value. It relieves the brain and the heart, the organs most likely to be broken down through hard work and worry.

Play seems to have an admirable effect in equalizing the circulation of the blood and in mitigating the strain placed on the different organs. Play furnishes also a kind of mental training which is very necessary in adult life. It takes the attention from a single affair, and it keeps all the sense organs alert.

TREATMENT OF CATARRH

DEAR PROFESSOR:
Will you kindly tell me of a good cure for catarrh? G. K.

YOU are asking me a question which has puzzled physicians for many years. It is said that if the blood is in perfect condition one will not have catarrh, as it is the outward effect of bad blood conditions. So for this reason it is wise to look in this direction in trying for a cure. If the catarrhal condition is in the throat or nose, be careful about breathing with the mouth open. In fact, this should never be done under any conditions except in certain breathing exercises. Diet yourself, avoiding anything that will produce an acid condition of the blood. Keep the feet warm and dry and the stomach in first-class order. After that go to a physician.

CURE FOR HIVES

DEAR PROFESSOR:
I get large red blotches all over my body at times and they itch terribly. If I am not mistaken they are called hives. Please tell me what to do for them. M. L. W.

THE first thing to do when the hives make their first appearance is to take a quick purgative, such as mineral water, as the hives are caused by something lying undigested in the stomach and irritating it to a great degree. Then prepare a tepid bath with as little water as will cover the body; empty into the tub a pound package of cooking soda and lie in this bath, being sure that all parts of the body which are affected get the benefit of the application. This will usually suffice, but you may need to repeat the bath and also to take medicine for the correction of the stomach and bowels.

A BUSINESS GIRL WIFE

HAS generally learned the valuable lesson of when to be silent.

Should be a success, because she knows the worries that beset a man in business.

Understands the value of money, having had to work for it herself.

Has generally learned to dress neatly and carefully, without extravagance.

Knows by experience the worker's need of a quiet, restful home at the day's end.

Has learned in her business career the necessity of system in all work.

Knows the unfairness of asking the business person to execute household commissions.

Knows how easy it is to be detained at the office, and therefore won't grumble over much if dinner is kept waiting.

Knows that there are bigger things in the world than the trifling little personal things that happen to her each day, and will never bother her husband with her worries until he has had a good meal and a rest.

Her own experience has taught her that it is only in a cheerful, peaceful home, lighted by the light of love, that the wage-earner can find strength, refreshment and hope to start each day's toil anew.

Underwear for Schoolgirls

A WORD about the underwear for the outfit of the girl who is going away to school may not be amiss.

Be careful to shrink the cloth from which the garments are to be made before they are cut out. English long cloth, which may be purchased by the piece at a more reasonable figure than by the yard, is a good material to use for white underwear.

Hamburg edging and insertion in good quality and linen lace provide the most durable trimming for nightgowns, petticoats and drawers.

It is wisest for two reasons not to trim them elaborately; boarding school laundries are seldom very dependable, and over elaboration is not good style. Better fine work and little of it than coarse trimming in quantity. All underwear should be marked either with initials embroidered on, or with the inexpensive woven initials securely sewed.

Timely Tips for Home Dressmakers

Use Soutache Braid

THE new yokes on blouses in white or colors, lined or transparent, are not so much of lace this Fall as of net elaborately trimmed with soutache. This tiny braid has taken a leap in favor and will be used where hand embroidery was used. It is put on the net in all manner of designs with silk floss. The soutache used is always white and it is even put on the very handsome louse gowns, outlined by a tiny thread of gold or silver.

Concerning Seams

DON'T forget that a snipping or notching of the seams here and there, particularly with a selvage edge forming one side of the seam, will counteract the shrinking tendencies when seams are dampened and pressed. When the selvage shows a puckered or drawn effect in the goods it is better to cut it away before starting the garment.

Making Fall Wrap

IN choosing the cloth for your Fall jacket select some color that you can wear with all the dresses you have, and get that color in pale, dull shades. Bright shades are a thing of the long ago. New colors all are soft and dull, indeed so much so that they have almost a faded appearance.

In Sewing on Buttons

WHEN sewing buttons on thin blouses, always sew a white tape on the under side of that part of the cloth on which the buttons are to be stitched.

Neglect of Woman's Health Is Criminal

A VIGOROUS attack was recently made by Dr. R. R. Rentoul, a well-known doctor, on the neglect of women's health, which, he says, is a country's greatest national asset.

In an address the doctor declared "that man, by failing to give the order of merit to the right woman, has produced a type of female who is a compound of the hysterical, neurotic, degenerate, and sometimes the criminal.

"The child-hating married woman (a not insignificant quantity), whose demoralized desires are limited to a rich husband, a flat, a poodle dog and a male hanger-on, is a product of our modern civilization and a menace to our race.

"The woman who deserves the order of merit is the physically and mentally healthy women, who represents the best thing in life—motherhood."

He suggested that if the law raised the age of marriage to twenty-five years in the man and twenty-one in the woman, required a pre-nuptial medical certificate of good health, made it illegal for the diseased to marry, abolished actions for breach of promise where existing disease could be proved, prohibited paupers and vagabonds from marrying, taxed bachelors, and reduced taxation to those of small income who had large families, it would go a long way to increase the sum total of human happiness, and there would be fewer separations, fewer squalid homes and fewer degenerate children.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

THE BABY'S NAME

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
Would like you to give me some pretty name, starting with "F," one that is not used in common, for a little girl. Hoping you will pay attention to this, I am sincerely yours, G. D.

I CANNOT think of any uncommon names beginning with "F," save Felice, Fedora or Freda. Any one of these names would be pretty.

TOO YOUNG

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a young girl of sixteen years, and am acquainted with a gentleman of about thirty years. He, indeed, shows by his actions that he cares a lot for me, and while I like him I could never think of loving him. He has often asked me out with him, but I have always refused, telling him that I am far too young to be going out with fellows, though he says that he knows plenty of girls of sixteen who go out with fellows. READER.

YOU are much too young to be going out with men. Of course you do not love him. You are too young to have any idea of loving any man for some years to come. If he cares for you he will wait and ask for you in two years' time. In the meantime be content to be a little girl, and put beaux out of your mind.

WOULD BE FOOLISH

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
I am a young man, twenty-two years of age, and keep company with a girl who wants me to marry her in six months' time, but I told her I did not have any money, and she said it did not matter; as we could save up when married. Please let me know what to do, as I only make $12 a week and see no chance of advancement yet. ANXIOUS.

YOU would be very foolish to marr before you felt that you could affor to. The girl makes a great mistake i urging you to do so. You must be fir and make her understand that it is im possible for you to marry in your presen circumstances.

WHOSE WAS THE FAULT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
Do you think it proper to send a card to a gentleman whom I know very well but with whom I have had a slight misunderstanding? A. B.

IF you were the one to blame it is a right to send him the card, but if was the one to blame he should take first step toward a reconciliation.

THE TURN OF THE BALANCE

A Thrilling Romance of American Life---By Brand Whitlock

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

THE men stood in a row, and Danner, leaning over his desk, began to check off their names. There was the white-haired Delaney, who had seven years for burglary; Johnson, a negro who had been given fifteen years for cutting with intent to kill; Simons, five years for grand larceny; Gunning, four years for housebreaking; Schypalski, a Pole, three years for arson; Graves the employe of Ward, one year for embezzlement; McCarthy, and Hayes, his partner, five years each for burglary and larceny; "Deacon" Samuel, an old thief, and "New York Willie," alias "The Kid," a pickpocket, who had each seven years for larceny from the person; and Brice, who had eight years for robbery.

These men were to be taken to the penitentiary. Nearly all of them were guilty of the crimes of which they had been convicted.

The Sheriff had detailed Danner to escort these prisoners to the penitentiary, as he sometimes did when he did not care to make the trip himself.

Gregg would accompany Danner, while Poole would go only as far as the railway station. Danner was anxious to be off; these trips to the State capital were a great pleasure to him, and he had that nervous dread of missing the train which comes over most people as they are about to start away for a holiday.

He was anxious to get away from the jail before anything happened to stay him; he was anxious to be on the moving train, for until then he could not feel himself safe from some sudden recall. He had been thinking all day of the black-eyed girl in a brothel not three blocks from the penitentiary, whom he expected to see that night after he had turned the prisoners over to the warden.

He could scarcely keep his mind off her long enough to make his entries in the jail record and to see that he had all his mittimuses in proper order.

Memories!

The prisoners, standing there in a haggard row, wore the same clothes they had on when they apeared in court for sentence a few weeks before; the same clothes they had on when arrested.

None of them of course, had any baggage. The little trinkets they had somehow accumulated while in jail they had distributed that afternoon among their friends who remained behind in the steel cages; all they had in the world they had on their backs.

Most of them were dressed miserably. Gunning, indeed, who had been lying in jail since the previous June, wore a straw hat, which made him so absurd that the Kid laughed when he saw him, and said:

"That's a swell lid you've got on there, Gunny, my boy. I'm proud to fill in with your mob."

Gunning tried to smile, and his face, already white with the prison pallor, seemed to be made more ghastly by the mockery of the mirth.

The Kid was well dressed, as well dressed as Graves, who still wore the good clothes he had always loved. Graves was white, too, but not as yet with the prison pallor.

He tried to bear himself bravely; he did not wish to break down before his companions, all of whom had longer sentences to serve than he.

He dreaded the ride through the familiar streets where a short time before he had walked in careless liberty, full of the joy and hope and ambition of youth.

He knew that countless memories would stalk those streets, rising up unexpectedly at every corner, following him to the station with mows and jeers; he tried to bear himself bravely, and he did succeed in bearing himself grimly, but he had an aching lump in his throat that would not let him speak.

It had been there ever since that hour in the afternoon when his mother had squeezed her face between the bars of his cell to kiss him good-by again.

The prison had been strangely still while she was there, and for a long time after she went even the Kid had been quiet and had forgotten his joshing and his ribaldry. Graves had tried to be brave for his mother's sake, and now he tried to be brave for appearance's sake.

Cheerful Again.

He envied Delaney and the negro, who took it all stolidly, and he might have envied the Kid, who took it all humorously, if it had not been for what the Kid had said to him that afternoon about his own mother.

But now the Kid was cheerful again and kept up the spirits of all of them. To Graves it was like some horrible dream; everything in the room—Danner, the turnkey, the exhibit of jailers' instruments on the wall—was unreal to him—everything save the hatband that hurt his temples, and the aching lump in his throat.

His eyes began to smart, his vision was blurred; instinctively he started to lift his hand to draw his hat farther down on his forehead, but something jerked, and Schypalski moved suddenly; then he remembered the handcuffs.

The Pole was dumb under it all, but Graves knew how Schypalski had felt that afternoon when the young wife whom he had married but six months before was there; he had wept and grown mad until he clawed at the bars that separated them, and then he had mutely pressed his face against them and kissed the young wife's lips, just as Graves's mother had kissed him. And then the young wife would not leave, and Danner had to come and drag her away across the cement floor.

Learning Fast.

Johnson was stupefied; he had not known until that afternoon that he was to be taken away so soon, and his wife had not known; she was to bring the children on the next day to see him.

For an hour Johnson had been on the point of saying something; his lips would move, and he would lift his eyes to Danner, but he seemed afraid to speak.

Meanwhile, Danner was making his entries and looking over his commitment papers. The Kid had begun to talk with Deacon Samuel. He and the Deacon had been working together and had been arrested for the same crime, but Danner had separated them in jail so they could not converse, and they were together now for the first time since their arrest.

The Kid bent his body forward and leaned out of the line to look down at the Deacon. The old thief was smooth-faced and wore gold-rimmed spectacles. When the Kid caught his mild, solemn eye, looking out benignly from behind his glasses, a smile spread over his face, and he said:

"Well, old pard, we're fixed for the next five-spot."

"Yes," said the Deacon.

"How was it pulled off for you?" asked the Kid.

"Oh, it was the same old thing over again," replied the Deacon. "They had us lagged before the trial, but they had to make a flash of some kind, so they put up twelve suckers and then they put a rapper up, and that settled it."

"There was nothing to it," said the Kid, in a tone that acquiesced in all the Deacon had been saying. "It was that way with me. They were out chewing the rag for five minutes, then they comes in, hands the stiff to the old bloke in the rock, and he hands it to Quills, who reads it to me, and then the old punk-hunter made his spiel."

Mrs. Potter Palmer Breaks All Records; 4,000 Miles in 6 Days

Mrs. Potter Palmer of Chicago, from a recent photograph.

First by Lusitania, Then by 18-Hour Flyer, She Journeys Homeward to Chicago.

NEW York, Sept. 14.—Mrs. Potter Palmer, who was a passenger on the swift Lusitania, reached her home in Chicago this morning with a record to her credit of having made the longest journey in the quickest time which any woman ever attempted.

Mrs. Palmer had expected to return to the United States on the Lucania after her sojourn in Europe, but when she found she could not obtain accommodations she engaged passage on the new giant steamship of the Cunard Line. It was on her way over that she evolved the idea of demonstrating the speed possible by modern methods of travel.

Record Trip's Start.

Getting under way at 9:15 o'clock last Saturday night at Liverpool the Lusitania the next morning passed Daunt's Rock and squared away for her race against time. The steamship was reported abeam of Sandy Hook lightship at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and after considerable preliminary work, and with ten tugs to aid her, the passengers, at 12:15, were permitted to land.

Mrs. Palmer, however, did not hasten in leaving the vessel. She remained on board while the customs inspectors examined her baggage. She made arrangements by telephone for her trip overland, and at 3:50 o'clock she left Desbrosses street ferry. The Pennsylvania special, on which she was a passenger, departed from Jersey City shortly after 4 o'clock, and arrived in Chicago at 8:50 this morning.

Took Flying Train.

Usually referred to as an eighteen-hour train, the Pennsylvania special frequently makes the run in less than that time. The train travels at the rate of about fifty miles an hour in order to cover the 927 miles between here and Chicago. The voyage of the Lusitania was 2,780 nautical miles, which is about 3,175 land miles. The total distance which had been traveled by Mrs. Palmer on her arrival in Chicago this morning was 4,000 miles in little more than a week. Mrs. Palmer on the trip West was accompanied by her son, Potter Palmer, Jr.

HUNTS THIEF WHO GOT $516

To-day Francisco Velardo is alternately hunting frantically for the thief who robbed him of $516, representing his savings for the years he has been in this country, and beseeching the police to find the wealth which he was fondly planning to return to his native soil and live like a prince.

Velardo, who rooms at No. 21 Maverick square, East Boston, found his money was missing when he returned from work last night.

In a pocketbook in his room he had forty-three $10 bills and three $2 bills, and in a wooden savings bank he had $80 in coin.

Yesterday afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock the house was left alone, and it is believed that some person who was acquainted with Velardo and knew that he had the money entered the house and made off with it.

"L'S" BILL FOR FIREMEN'S FARE ANGERS TOWN

Arlington Selectmen Stirred by Street Railway's Demand for Payment.

SAY MEN SHOULD RIDE FREE

The Board of Selectmen, members of the Arlington Fire Department and other residents of Arlington are greatly wrought up at the action of the Boston Elevated Railway Company who recently sent to the town of Arlington a bill for thirty-five cents for transporting seven call firemen on one of the elevated cars to answer an alarm for fire on August 6. It has been customary in Arlington, as it is in other cities and towns, to give free transportation to firemen on the street railways when responding to and returning from fires in the respective places. In the case of the call firemen, it is not obligatory, but just a matter of courtesy to the town or city and to the fire department.

There are forty-five call men who respond to fires in the town of Arlington. The Boston Elevated Company has usually given the call men free transportaion when responding to fires. On August 6 seven of the town's call men boarded a car on their way to a fire on Tufts street. When they informed the conductor, who asked for their fares, that they were call firemen who were responding to an alarm for fire, they were politely informed that that did not alter the case any. The men, however, refused to pay their fares, telling the conductor that if the company wished to charge for transporting them that the bill could be sent to the town.

Selectmen Taken Aback.

On Tuesday evening, when the Arlington Board of Selectmen convened, the bill which had been sent by the Elevated company was presented to them for their approval. They were completely taken aback. This was the first time in the history of the town that such a bill was presented for their approval. It was approved without any discussion.

To-day the sole topic of conversation in Arlington is the bill that the Elevated road sent to the town.

Fire Chief Charles Gott of Arlington gave the following statement to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"I think that the action of the Boston Elevated Railway Company in charging 35 cents for transporting seven of our call men to a fire is preposterous. It is nothing but an imposition. There are about forty-five call men who respond to fires in this town. They leave everything that they may be doing when an alarm comes in and hurry to the fire.

"In most cases they have not time to stop to get money. They do not think of that in their haste to get to the scene of the fire. I think that it is only right that the Elevated road should give the men free transportation. If the Elevated company expects the men to walk, then the buildings in the town are doomed when fire breaks out."

"The Elevated road is only doing what is right when they give us free transportation for our call men in Arlington," said Driver Beed of Chemical 1 to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

"The forty-five call men here," continued Mr. Beed, "should not be obliged to pay fares while responding to fires. The regular uniformed men are not obliged to pay. Why should the call men?"

Elevated's Side of the Question.

J. Harvey White, publicity agent of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, spoke as follows in regard to the company's position in the matter. He said:

"Our company does not carry call firemen free of charge. We transport firemen in uniform free, but we do not supply call men with tickets or transportation. Certain uniformed city officials, policemen and uniformed firemen we carry, but no others."

A man supposed to be C. E. Rand of No. 31 Baldwin avenue, West Everett, jumped from a swiftly moving electric car at the corner of Wyoming avenue and Main street, Melrose, and sustained probably fatal injuries.

He was taken to the Melrose hospital. The only means of identification was an empty envelope in his pocket bearing the name of C. E. Rand, No. 31 Baldwin avenue, West Everett.

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

The Phillies will make their last appearance here this season when they line up for another double-header with the Doves this afternoon. Pat Flaherty will pitch one of the games for his side and Captain Tenney is expected to be back on first base.

The great McGee, who has been working out a three days' suspension, will likely be seen in his old place in left field, in which case Courtney will view the sport from the bench.

Billy Murray will probably put Sparks and Corridon in the box for the two games. With good weather a big crowd will attend, as there are only two more championship games to be played on the South End grounds this year, those with Brooklyn on the last two days of the season.

Notes of the Game.

"Now, then, Beermont, give us a homer," yelled a bleacherite, as the Boston centre fielder went to bat in the eighth inning of the second game, which, considering the Aldermanic proportions of Beaumont's stomach, was not a bad joke.

* * *

Knabe played another pretty pair of games. The little fellow is a star bunter. He laid down three sacrifices in the second game.

* * *

Beaumont retired the Quakers in the dark by a fine catch off Courtney in the second game.

* * *

Cold Molasses is a regular race horse compared with the movements of Umpire Hank O'Day.

* * *

Doolin kicked so hard when Grant was called out in the ninth inning of the first game that he was banished from the grounds. O'Day let him play the second game, but "Silk" O'Loughlin wouldn't have allowed him to do so, claiming he has authority from Ban Johnson in a case like this. Ban has never declared himself to anyone else, however.

* * *

Richie went to the bad in the fifth inning of his game. Otherwise he was all to the mustard.

* * *

Tenney did some coaching and tried to pinch hit in the first game. He injured his leg sliding home on Thursday.

* * *

The double-header to-day begins at the same time, 1:45 p. m.

* * *

Doolin made half a dozen star throws from awkward positions.

* * *

The Quakers had plenty of chances to win the second game.

* * *

Gleason, the eighty-year-old Kid, butted into the game for a brief period when Doolin was banished. The Kid is getting gray around the gills, but he is nearly as lively as ever. Great old sport, the Kid.

DEDHAM WON POLO CUP.

DEDHAM, Sept. 14.—The Dedham polo team won the final in the competition for the Myopia Cup in the tournament at Karlstein, beating New Haven 11 to 9, after allowing New Haven six goals by handicap, thus keeping the cup in Massachusetts.

GANS GOT $12,625.80.

The report that Gans and Britt split even their share of the receipts in their recent battle appears to be erroneous. Gans received $12,625.80 and Britt $8,616.40. Gans also won $5,000 in bets.

HAFFORD CHOSEN COACH.

Leo Hafford, formerly football and baseball star at Somerville High, has been selected to coach all athletic teams at that school, succeeding Charles Cuddy, retired.

N. Y. AMERICAN PRINTERS PLAY GLOBE MONDAY

One of the biggest events that ever happened in the history of newspaper baseball is scheduled for 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at the American League Grounds, when the crack baseball team from Hearst's New York American will clash with the Boston Globe team.

There are many stars on both nines, and the contest promises to be interesting all the way. The Gothamites are the holders of the newspaper championship, and they hope to take back the scalps of their rivals in this city.

Things will be made pleasant for the New Yorkers while they are in this city. To-morrow they will be escorted to the Warwick Club at Narragansett Park, Rhode Island, where a fish dinner will be served, with President McPhail of the Globe Association as the toastmaster. After this feast, there will be sports of all kinds, including a ball game between the old-timers. Then the party will return to the Hub, where the visitors will be taken to the Quincy House, where they will make their headquarters.

On Monday the visiting newspaper men will make a round of the newspaper offices in this city, and they will be given introductions to their confreres. At 3 o'clock the ball game will be played, and all the printers in this city and other newspaper men will be on hand.

Fred Lake, the former Boston National catcher, will umpire the game. Masters' Commonwealth Band will render the popular music of the day.

Monday night the New York American and the Globe teams will occupy boxes at the Tremont Theatre, through the kindness of Manager Schoeffel, and the large trophy presented by John I. Taylor of the Boston American Club awarded to the winning nine.

BILLY GLOVER BACK HOME

Billy Glover, who has challenged Young Donahue and Dave Deshler, was presented with a handsome diamond ring by his friends last evening at the residence of John Farron, in South Boston.

Glover has just returned from a successful trip to New York, where he won four battles.

HARNESS HORSE NOTES.

George W. Leavitt bred the futurity winner, Douglass (2:12¼), and he was named after the veteran horsemen of this city, Robert H. Douglass. Leavitt, too, bred Selma, winner of fourth money in the two-year-old division of the American Horse Breeder futurity at Readville.

Reproachless (2:04½) is the fastest green pacing mare of the season, Straight Advice (2:05½) the fastest green pacing stallion, and Codero (2:10¼) the fastest green trotting stallion.

A full dozen of the year's new 2:10 performers were bred in California.

The foreigners are training Onward Silver (2:05¼) for another campaign, and they say he is fast as ever.

The Boston pacer, Kruger (2:04), is easily the star pacer of the season, outside of the free-for-all class.

Ralph B. Williams, of Boston, is thinking of breeding Lady Sealskin (2:06½) to Audubon Boy (1:59¼).

Arnold Lawson left Milady o' Dreamwold with "Doc" Tanner at Cleveland for a thorough overhauling and preparation for next year's racing.

President J. M. Johnson, of the Breeders' Association, recently drove his yearling by Todd a quarter in 35s., the last eighth in 16½s., a 2:12 gait. He is counted the fastest trotter of his age ever foaled.

CUTLER AND RYAN IN THREE-CUSHION MATCH

It has been a long time since a billiard match of such importance as the one which will take place at Miah Murray's parlors on Washington street, near Dover, between Albert Cutler and James Ryan, both of this city, has been played in New England. The men will play for $100 a side and the gate receipts, which bid fare to be large, judging by the advance sale.

The billiardists will play a 150-point, three-cushion match, 50 points being played each night. The first block will be run off on Monday night, while the other blocks will be played on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

Both players have been practicing hard all this week for the big match. Cutler, who is the champion player of New England, thinks he will have a hard time beating his opponent, who recently forsook the pool game, at which he was a crack, for the "three-ball" game.

There has been a great deal of betting on the result so far, and although Cutler has a large following, there are many fans in this city who think Ryan will beat him and have money that talks for them.

MICHIGAN'S FOOTBALL PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Sept. 12.—Now that Michigan is free from the restrictions imposed by the Big Nine in effecting the football reforms there is nothing to prevent the Wolverines holding early practice, as in the days of the unbeaten championship elevens. Last year the poor showing of the varsity was attributed to two causes—the lack of suitable material and the abolishing of pre-season training, which forced the men to go into the regularly scheduled games without sufficient preparation.

The two weeks intervening before the opening of the college year will be devoted to running through simple formations, practicing kicking and, most important, to getting the men into condition after their Summer's relaxation. All of the men who are considered as being of varsity material have been asked to report, and it is thought that Yost will have a squad of twenty-five men at work before the end of next week.

Chances Are Good.

The chances for a winning team are this year much less dismal than at a corresponding date one year ago. "Germany" Schultz, one of the best centres in the country, has been restored to eligibility by virtue of a year's hard study and abstinence from athletics for an equal period. Consequently Yost will have the following veteran wearers of the "M" as a nucleus: Captain Magoffin, Bishop and Workman, halfbacks; Schultz, centre; Graham and Clement, guards; Rheinschild and Patrick, tacklers; Harry Hammond and Loell, ends, besides several of last year's candidates who failed to win the "M," although they did good work in the smaller games.

Notable among these are Wright, tackle; Davis, end, and Embs, fullback. However, it is from the ineligibles of last year that Coach Yost intends to find the men to fill the gaps left by graduation and other causes. Casey, the giant tackle from Iowa Normal; Douglass, a halfback from De-Pauw University; Flanagan, the star tackle on the championship fresh engineer team; Joy Miller, formerly a brilliant performer at D. U. S.; Allerdice, from Shortridge High School, Indianapolis, and Wasmund, the game little halfback from Lafayette University's eleven, who with Douglass raised such havoc with the varsity's line last year, all of these men look good enough to compel some of the veterans to hustle.

Who Will Play Quarter?

Quarterback is the one position which is causing worry. The most likely looking candidates are Allerdice, Bishop, Miller, Sullivan and Davey, the varsity quartermiler, who ran the scrubs in their scrimmages against the varsity last Fall. None of these men look like Boss Weeks or Eckersall or Barlow or Norcross, but the students are hoping that some phenomenon may be uncovered in the same way that Barlow was brought out two seasons ago.

Althought he Vanderbilt game at Nashville will cause considerable excitement, the work of the Michigan eleven throughout the season will be with the Pennsylvania game in view. The Quakers pay their return visit to Ann Arbor November 16 and Yost is extremely anxious to wipe out the memory of that 17 to 0 affair of last year at Franklin Field. Ferry Field has been improved and Manager Baird states that while the seating capacity of possible for more than 25,000 to witness the stands is already over 18,000 it will be the game.

PLAN FUTURITY STAKE FOR AMATEUR DRIVING CLUBS

A new idea in futurity stakes is being considered by the League of Amateur Driving Clubs, which may open a stake limited to the members of the organizations belonging to the league, the fee to be nominal in naming the mare and starting the foal, and the sum received from these entries to buy a cup for the winner.

Among the several hundred fun horses owned by members of the clubs in the league are many mares with fast records. In numerous instances they are geting past their best days for racing, and the owners will then retire them to the breeding ranks, mating them with the best stallions in the country.

There can be no doubt that the futurity idea would arouse a lot of interest in rearing and developing the produce, while rivalry would be keen to bring to the wire the fastest colt and win the costly trophy in commemoration of the victory.

Among the members of the Gentlemen's Driving Club of Boston, who would be right in the swim in such a futurity, can be named J. M. Johnson, Arnold Lawson, William Russell Allen, the Hall family, Peter B. Bradley, Jack Crabtree, James Hanley, J. Frank Howland, David N. C. Hyams, C. W. Lasell, George W. Norton, John O'Connor, Arthur H. Parker, Francis S. Parker, T. H. Plaat, Benjamin Pope, C. H. Traiser, George Van Dyke, Henry M. Whitney, Ralph B. Williams and Charles Whittemore.

DELMONT WILL MEET LANGDON AT CHELSEA CLUB

Tuesday's match at the Winnisimmet Athletic Club of Chelsea, will be between Albert Delmont of Medford and Tommy Langdon of Philadelphia and they will box ten rounds. The distance is just right for the Philadelphian, who is confident that he can again outpoint the sturdy little Italian.

Shortly after Al's return from England, he met Langdon in Philadelphia and was outpointed in a six round bout. Since then he has had several offers to meet Langdon in bouts of the short session, but he has passed them all up. What he will do with Langdon in a bout of ten rounds is a subject that is creating considerable talk.

STUCKLEN'S GREAT GOLF.

H. W. Stucklen, the young New Hampshire champion, won twofold honors yesterday in the open meeting at Brae-Burn, for not only did he return the lowest net score of 70 in the medal handicap competition, but with Ray Gorton of Brae-Burn he won by one stroke the playoff tie with Alex Smith and A. A. Highlands, at 139, for first place in the Scotch foursome of Thursday.

OHAHA WINS PENNANT.

DES MOINES, Ia., Sept. 14.—Omaha yesterday won the Western League baseball championship, which Des Moines had held for two years, by defeating the home team in the second game, 2 to 0, after Des Moines had captured the first game, 6 to 5.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 14.—The Boston Americans are still the thorn in the side of the Philadelphia aspirants for the American League championship. Hence, the double-header scheduled for to-day as a result of yesterday's thirteen-inning game on the thirteenth day of the month.

Everything bordered on the thirteen combination yesterday. True, Boston only had twelve hits, whereas the Athletics had fourteen, still divide up the sum total, twenty-six, by two, and there remains still the fatal thirteen for each team. Had the game been won the total runs would have footed thirteen. As the game was not played to a finish, owing to darkness, the score remained six to six, making the even dozen. The thirty-nine put-outs on each side divided by three, of course, gave the fatal thirteen once more, with a repetition of the thirteen-inning tie contest in Boston here on the home grounds.

The wonder of it all is who will do the twirling in the double-header here this afternoon. The Pilgrims still have Morgan and Young to rely on—two dangerous pitchers so far as the Athletics are concerned. For Philadelphia, it would not be at all surprising to see Connie Mack send Waddell right back again, to make good his four-innings balloon ascension yesterday. True, it was a case of rattles brought on by a poor throw by Davis, but it needs making good just the same. Dygert or Bartley may be used in the other game, it being certain that Connie Mack wants to hold Bender for New York.

GANS SAYS HE WILL BOX BRITT FOR SIDE BET ONLY

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—With his arm in a sling and numerous patches of court plaster on his face, Jimmy Britt sauntered into Eddie Graney's Tuxedo Cafe. He had no more than ordered a "round" for the house than Joe Gans and his manager, Ben Selig, appeared on the scene, the latter two to bid Graney farewell, as they were scheduled to catch the midnight train for Los Angeles, where Gans is to fight Jimmy Burns the latter part of the month.

"Hello, Jimmy," saluted Gans, holding out his hand to Britt.

"Good afternoon," was Britt's reply.

"Have a drink, Joe? What's your's, Ben?"

Not a word was said about the fight until after the wine had been opened. Britt was the first to approach the subject.

"Well, Joe, it was an unlucky ending to our bout, wasn't it?"

"Yes, it was unfortunate for both of us, in a way. In the first place I was unfortunate in not securing a clean knockout, and, in the second place, you were unlucky because you had to stop so early. If the accident hadn't happened you might have lasted another round."

"Get off that stuff," replied Britt. "I would have beaten you sure. I had not started to fight when the accident happened.

"Say, Joe, I want another chance. Will you give me another fight?"

"Sure," answered the colored gent. "As soon as the fight with Burns is over, I will take you on. That is if you will bet me $10,000 on the side and get a club to offer good enough inducements."

That was all.

The men shook hands and parted the best of friends.

As a rule in this city there is talk for weeks after a big fight, but yesterday little was heard. Britt's friends, however, claimed their man sure would have won if he hadn't been injured.

There will be no more talk of Britt's winning the lightweight championship of the world. Joseph says he fought to prove to the people of California that his confession relating to the former Britt fight was the truth. His showing removes all doubt as to the respective merits of the men. Had Gans felt the need of hurrying he might have won in three minutes of fighting.

Ben Selig, Gan's manager, jumped into the ring after the fight, waving a thick bunch of pool tickets. He says that Gans bet close to $12,000 on himself at odds of 10 to 6½.

BIG BALL GAME AT SOMERVILLE

The Somerville Athletics and the Charlestowns will clash this afternoon at City Field, Cedar street and Broadway, Somerville, in the second of a series of five games. The Somervilles won the first and will try hard to make it three straight. Arthur Graham, one of the best of the local semi-pros, will pitch for the Somerville team. His work this Summer has caught the eye of some of the minor league magnates, who are expected to be on hand to watch him perform. All Broadway cars pass the grounds.

Isn't This Dreadful?

In New Zealand They Actually DO Things

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

New Zealand is a young country. Our country, which we think of as young, is an old, gray-headed, plutocratic grandfather compared with the distant island where human beings run the government actually for human beings.

They do strange things down there on the other side of the world. To begin with, you know, they are hanging head downward from us on the earth. The soles of their feet are pointed toward the soles of our feet. It is hard, even yet, for human beings to realize that.

That is not the queerest thing about them, by any means. They actually believe that of all "vested rights" the one REALLY important is the right of the majority to have the government run for THEM.

Professor Frank Parsons has written an admirable history of New Zealand conditions. We have read its six or seven hundred pages with care, and on one of those "some days" when good intentions are fulfilled, we propose to write you a series of articles on New Zealand government.

Meanwhile, here are a few facts, which we borrow from our able Western friend, the Weekly Oregon Statesman. Think over these statements and make up your mind whether these things are "dreadful Socialism," or "horrid paternalism," or sound common sense:

"In New Zealand the government owns the railroads, telegraph and telephone systems, public highways, coal mines, operates fire and life insurance companies, stimulates business by loans at a low rate of interest and exercises control over almost everything. And it is the richest country in the world, the per capita valuation being $1,480.

(How is that for "wild anarchy"?)

"Every child between the ages of 7 and 14 is compelled to attend school. It is impossible for a native born young man to secure employment unless he has a certificate of graduation. The working days are eight hours long, and a half holiday is granted each week.

(What becomes of our blessed free competition and the right of the lofty workingman to be sweated to death in the name of "intelligent business"?)

"Under the settlers' act, the government loans money to its subjects. A rich man who owns much land is compelled to sell part of it if a purchaser comes along. If you want to buy a piece of land and you have insufficient money, the government will loan you three-fifths the amount you have for five years at 5 per cent. It will sell you 'bush' land and pay you $2.50 a day for three days' work each week on the public roads contiguous to your property. It will haul fertilizer to your farm for nothing. If you wish to exhibit at a stock fair it will transport your exhibits free of charge on the railroad.

(Are you not gasping for breath at this shameless paternalism? Just think of hauling the farmer's fertilizer free, for the sake of the soil and the crops! Doesn't that shock us in this better land, where the railroads haul free NOTHING, except politicians and plutocrats in private cars?)

"The government believes in unions of employers and unions of employes. They have two tribunals to arbitrate strikes—the arbitration and conciliatory boards. The grievances are first taken to the conciliatory board, which is composed of seven capitalists and seven representatives of the labor unions. If that board does not reach an agreement, the matter is laid before the arbitration board, consisting of the judge of the supreme court, one capitalist and one labor unionist. The decision stands for three years.

(New Zealanders actually deal with the great strike problem, using their brains, instead of leaving it to workers and employers to fight it out, or starve it out, dancing up and down on the unfortunate public meanwhile.)

"The government telegraph rates are 12 cents for as many words, and half a cent each for all additional words. The telephone rates are about one-fourth what they are in this country. Insurance rates are about half as much. Last year $720,000 was paid out on lapsed policies, because the officials believed the beneficiaries were in extreme need of the money that was not legally theirs.

(If that is not anarchy, what is it? We have a DIFFERENT insurance system here.)

"Throughout all of the provinces coal is sold from $4 to $4.50 per ton. If you want a house, the government will build you one, frame structures costing $1,200 and brick $2,500, on a twenty-year loan at 5 per cent. With no crop failures, it is an easy matter to repay the loan. Out of $24,000,000 loaned to the people in the last fourteen years the government has lost less than $5,000 through default."

We really don't know quite how to describe such goings on as these. Perhaps later, after you have got your breath back, we may tell you more about this "crazy New Zealand," where they manage and spend government money for the benefit of the governed, where the American politician, with his carcass and convictions for sale, could make himself useful only as part of one of those government free-hauled loads of fertilizer.

Little Editorials from the People

"BOYS WILL BE BOYS"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

An account appeared in a Boston paper of complaints from cadets aboard the training ship Enterprise, stating the poor treatment they are receiving.

Well! I was on two cruisers, the first as mess-cook, the last on the cruise before the present one, as yeoman, and in the extremes of my two positions I had as good an opportunity as anyone of observing what was going on around and general conditions aboard ship.

Those observations have led me to the belief that things are not running as smoothly aboard as they should. As regards food conditions I found quite a change myself last cruise in comparison to two years ago—my first cruise—but we lived and some of us got fat on it.

As to the boys getting quarantined and disrated, the ship leaking and similar tales, such things are part and parcel of every cruise. Boys are not quarantined or disrated except they break rules which they well know are punishable by confinement to ship or loss of seniority. Anyone going to sea well knows that. Wooden ships leak to a more or less extent and one of the day's duties is for a detail to pump ship which duty is executed every evening.

Further than this I don't think I need state that boys will be boys, and the trip to sea to them is just like a luxuriously-living person with good intentions going and living among the slum dwellers—they find it tough until they get used to it.

"IF FITZ GOT ANOTHER CHANCE"

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The cartoon in your paper on Tuesday showing Mayor Fitzgerald trying to crawl out of a coal hole and crying for help hit the nail on the head. The people are now beginning to learn how the Mayor's office is being run as a political band wagon and as nothing else.

"Fitz looks out for his friends." Yes, but they have got to show Fitz that they'll look out for him again in the Mayor's chair. After the present expose (and it has barely begun) if he should again be elected, what do you suppose would happen?

The City Hall would not be left—and Boston citizens would be largely to blame at that. I hope that the BOSTON AMERICAN will keep on publishing the full facts of the matter and contiue to call a spade a spade.

MAYOR'S BLUFF CALLED

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The gigantic bluff that the mayor has been putting up about all his life has been called good and hard for once. He wanted a Finance Commission and he got it. Now he wishes he hadn't talked so much.

If all the grafters were in jail the real honest men would then have some chance to make a living. I would not [illegible] afraid to wager real money that the [illegible] of running this city could be [illegible] better than it is now done by [illegible] force of men and at half the [illegible] of money if everything was do[illegible]

Life on the Rolling Wave

By Wex Jones

GOT into my apartments aboard the Motormania this evening. Don't like the wall paper very much, but I must put up with it for the time, I suppose. Much disappointed in the view from my windows; not a thing in sight but the side of a shed.

Made a protest to the janitor, and he glibly explained that to-morrow it would be different. He says there will be an excellent marine view when we get to sea.

The garage attached to my apartment is vexatiously small and I can only get two of my cars into it. Very inconvenient.

Woke up this morning and asked janitor when we would sail. He said, in a rather superior manner, that we had turbined five hours ago. View from my dining room windows fine, but monotonous. All waves, which resemble each other very closely.

Have a friend in No. 5278 Starboard street South. Took the elevator down fourteen stories last night to visit him, but found the trolley cars had stopped running at 11 o'clock. Made a strong kick to the janitor, and demanded to see the superintendent of the building, but was told he was on the bridge navigating the Motormania. Should think he'd be better attending to the wishes of tenants.

Was on the roof to-day. Much fresh air. Caught a glimpse of the ocean and, looking through a telescope, almost made out the front end of the building.

Lost to-day in tangle of alleys and streets on the lower East Side. Street signs unintelligible and deficient. As usual, not a policeman in sight. Town is badly run, although the Street Cleaning Department certainly does its work.

Went to the theatre to-night. Pretty fair show, but awful crush of motor cars and cabs in the street outside. Stalled for twenty minutes. Need more mounted cops to handle traffic here.

Most annoying to-day. Street being torn up in front of my apartment to lay new gas and water mains. Suppose they'll pile the taxes on my property now.

Long list of articles "For Sale or Exchange" in the Morning Motormanian to-day.

Exchanged a packet of anti-seasick powders for a motor bicycle.

Went around the five-mile course in four and a half minutes, only knocking over three pedestrians. Was chased by cops, but shook them a mile from Starboard street and got home safe. Don't want to appear before the beak in the Night Court—he is hard on scorchers.

Played a game of billiards to-day and had game cinched, when table shook and spoiled my position. Janitor muttered some gibberish about "ship had rolled." What was he talking about?

Awakened this morning by cries of street pedlers. Found we were in New York Bay. Met friends on pier and landed humming "A Life on the Ocean Wave, a Home on the Rolling Deep!" I do love the sea.

The Heartlessness of the "Gentle" Sex

By Kennett Harris

"DERES all kines uf dem," said Duck. "An' you take it from me dat don't like ter give a guy de woist end of it. Dey'll git mushy over a pair o' ki-yis dat's havin' de time o' der lives eatin' each udder up an' wonder what de Humane Serciety's doin', an' de nex' minit dey'll hunt out de tenderes' place dey is on youse an' jab it an' chew on it till you're dead crazy.

"De more it hoits de more fun it is—fer dem, an' de louder you holler de more dey keep right on. I ain't goin' by dis fairy. She's got nex' to my blisters an' she's a-rubbin' dem an' sprinklin' salt on dem de bes' she knows how, all right, all right; but dey're all de same way.

"Las' Sunday was me good day wit' Ireen. I don't know wedder it's becus she an' Tony Pachilek is havin' trouble, but I've got ter de point where I ain't pertickler an' don't ast no questions. She's got me settin' up on me hind legs beggin', an' when she t'rows any scraps my way I don't let 'em touch de floor so's I kin sniff at 'em; I ketch 'em on de fly an' swaller 'em down.

"So when she says 'at Nantasket looks good to her, I don't lose no time touchin' Billy for a five-spot an' rushin' her to de gang plank. Say! Was she sweet! An' was I de egg! I wonder!

"Der was a nice crowd aboard, but I wasn't intrusted in em right den. It's us fer a quiet place wid whole yards atween us an' de gay an' t'oughtless merrymakers. I don't git me chance ter buzz de loidy all de time an' der wus t'ings I had on me mind I wanted to put her wise to, so de aujience will kindly be excused.

"We done a lot o' flutterin' around afore we lit, but finely I gets a couple o' chairs up in front where de graceful prow wus a-cleavin' de dancin' waters.

Eaves Droppers

"I SAYS, 'If you hear me make a noise like a dish uf oatmeal pretty soon, don't you git scared. It's de way I'm feelin'. Ain't dis poor! Ter be wit youse. After all dese long weeks uf——'

"Jest den Ireen gives me a kick on de ankle bone an' I looked around an' sees two skirts comin' up. Dey wus bot' young an' neider one was beauterful, dough dey wusn't so worse as dey might uf been at dat. We wus right dere, but dey didn't seem to notice dat, an' dey almost walked over us an' hung over de rail right back o' my chair.

"'Oh!' says one of dem. 'Jest see dat foam!'

"'Ain't it lovely?' says de udder.

"'W'en I git on a boat I make fer dis place foist t'ing,' says de foist one. 'I always love ter watch de water.'

"'So do I,' says de udder. 'Ain't it grand?'

"'Oncet in a while you see folks dat don't know enough ter go in when it rains,' I remarks to Ireen. She frowns an' kicks me on de ankle agin. So I close me face an' don't say what I was a-goin' to, an' dem two keeps a-hangin' over de rail an' passin' remarks about de water an' de sails an' de fishin' 'scursion boats an' de distant shore. Wus I sore!

"'Ain't it funny how de water's green in one place an' blue in anudder? What makes it?' one uf dem says finely.

"'I've got a bunch dat part uf it gits blue becus de udder's so green,' I explains to de goil.

"'I c'd jest stay here all day an' look at de water,' de udder says.

"'Aw! come on an' let's move round,' I says to Ireen, gittin' up.

"'No, less stay here,' she says.

Gets Very Tired

"'I'VE got suthin' I want to show youse,' I says, ketchin' her by the arm. An' so she got up an' I took her around to de side o' de cabin an' showed her a knot in de wood what had been painted over.

Den we prom'naded a while, me wit bot' eyes skinned fer a cosy corner. After a while a fat guy an' his fambly what wus' holdin' down erbout sixteen chairs abaft o' de main boom got up an' drove his bunch over ter hear de ban' play. Right dere I got tired an' give Ireen an invite to sit down an' let me see if her hands wusn't gittin' cold, jest to show that my feet wusn't.

"She didn't fall fer dat, an' o' course it wus too early in de day, but we wus a-gittin' middlin' sosherble, an' she wus tellin' me how few folks wus really wise to her kinks—an' I don't wonder!—when who sh'd come along an' drag out seats but them same two we'd jes' shook.

"'My! but its pleasant here out o' de wind,' says de blonde.

"'Ain't it!' says de udder. 'I t'ought it 'ud blow me overboard.'

"T'inks I, 'I wouldn't have taken no reska o' gittin' me clo'es damp if it had.'

"'Awful fresh!' says de blonde.

"'Ain't you, dough,' I says, winkin' at Ireen.

"Nothing to It"

"DERE was nuttin' to it. I stood fer it as long as I could an' then seein' dey was settled fer keeps I made Ireen come wit' me to de upper deck. Dere wus room dere, anyway, an' after a while I found a place dere wusn't nuttin' but a few coils o' rope around.

"It looked good to me an' we went inter session agin' an'—give you t'ree guesses who it wus broke up de meetin'. Sure, Mike. Dey didn't know de view wus so puffickly lovely as it wus up dere. Fine business! An' so nice an' quiet. 'I don't like ter be around where de ban's playin'; do youse, Mag?'

"'Dat's a pointer fer us, Ireen,' I says. 'Less go hear de band.'

"Dey tagged in to where we'd got behint de funnel, an' den to de cabin, an' all de time, it jes' happens dat way. Dey didn't see us. Hadn't noticed we wus dere. Den back to de bow uf de boat an' right dere I pulls up two more chairs.

"'Youse is lonesome,' I says to dem. 'Set right down an' git acquainted,' I says. 'We ain't goin' to holt your feelin's by walkin' away from youse dis time. How's de rest uf de Buttinski fambly? Have a stick o' gum on me.'

"'Is he talkin' to us, Mag?' says de blonde, givin' me de notion counter front.

"Mag snickered, dough. 'Aw, come on,' she says. 'Dere's anudder couple worse'n what dey is back in the stern sides; we're a-drorin' up to de pier.'

"An' dat's what we wus. Say, wouldn't dat jar youse! But dat's how dey all is."
